HOW GEN. MILES LANDED

Detailed Account of His First Porto Rican Move.

Paid No Attention to Possible Torpedoes—
Spanish Were Completely Surprised—
Flag Raised.

Port Guanica, (Island of Porto Rico), July 25, 2 p. m., via the Island of St. Thomas, July 26, a. m.—The United States military expedition under the command of Major General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army of the United States, which left Guantanamo bay on the evening of Thursday last, July 21, was landed here successfully today after a skirmish between a detachment of the Spanish troops and a crew of thirty belonging to the launch of the United States auxiliary gunboat Gloucester, formerly J. Pierpont Morgan's yacht Corsair. Forty Spaniards were killed and no Americans were hurt. The troops were pushed forward promptly in order to capture the railroad leading to Ponce, which is only about ten miles east of this place.

Early this morning the Gloucester, in charge of Lieutenant Commander Wainwright, steamed into Guanica harbor, in order to reconnoiter the place. With the fleet waiting outside, the gallant little fighting yacht braved the mines which were supposed to be in the harbor and found that there were five fathoms of water close in shore.

The Spanish were completely taken by surprise. Almost the first they knew of the approach of the army of invasion was in the announcement contained in the firing of a gun from the Gloucester, demanding that the Spanish haul down their flag which was floating from a flagstaff in front of a blockhouse standing to the east of the village. A couple of shots from three pounders were fired into the hills. The Gloucester then hove within about 600 yards of the shore and lowered a launch, having on board a Colt rapid-fire gun and thirty men, under the command of Lieutenant Huse, who was sent ashore without encountering opposition.

Quartermaster Beck thereupon told Yeoman Lacey to haul down the Spanish flag, which was done, and they then raised on the flag staff the first United States flag to float over Porto Rican soil. Suddenly about thirty Spaniards opened fire with Mauser rifles on the American party. Lieutenant Huse and his men responded with great gallantry, the Colt gun doing effective work. Normen, who received Cervera's surrender, and Wood, a volunteer lieutenant, shares the honors with Lieutenant Huse.

Almost immediately after the Americans were fired on the Gloucester opened fire on the enemy with all her three and six pounders which could be brought to bear, shelling the town and also dropping shells into the hills to the west of Guanica, where a number of Spanish cavalry were to be seen hastening toward the spot where the Americans had landed.

Lieutenant Huse then threw up a little fort, which he named Fort Wainwright.

Captain Wainwright said: "They fired on us after their flag was down and ours was up and after I had spared the town for the sake of the women and children. Next town I strike I will blow up."

Presently a few of the Spanish cavalry joined those who were fighting in the street of Guanica, but the Colt barked to a purpose, killing four of them. By that time the Gloucester had the range of the town and the blockhouse, and her guns were spitting fire.

Soon afterward white-coated galloping cavaliers were seen climbing the hills to the westward and the foot soldiers were scurrying along the fences from the town.

By 9:45 a. m., with the exception of a few guerrilla shots, the town was won and the enemy was driven out of its neighborhood. The Red Cross nurses on the Tampa and a detachment of regulars were the first to land from the transports.

After Lieutenant Huse had captured the place he deployed his small force into the suburbs.

But he was soon re-enforced by the regulars, who were followed by Company G of the Sixth Illinois, and then by other troops in quick succession. All the boats of the men-of-war and transports were used in the work of landing the troops, each steam launch towing four or five boats loaded to the rails with soldiers. But everything progressed in an orderly manner and according to the plans of General Miles. The latter went ashore at about noon, after stopping to board the Gloucester and thank Lieutenant Commander Wainwright for his gallant action.

General Miles said to the correspondent of the Associated Press: "Guanica and Cina are in the disaffected portion of the island. Matteo, the insurgent leader, lives at Yauco, a few miles inland. Had we landed at Cape Juan a line of rifle pits might have stopped our advance."
